

Name: Sari Bisiriyu, MD

Hometown: Brooklyn Park, MN

Medical School: St. George's
University School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: It's close to home & I enjoyed my interview.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: I'm from here so I think I've done everything.

Plans after residency: Start practicing!

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? Maybe modeling

Name: Zachary "Zack"
Devney, MD

Hometown: Castle Rock, CO

Medical School: Saba University
School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: The people! During the interviews the people, interviewers, and residents alike, made me feel welcome and like this would be a place where I could grow and learn.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: The Science Center. I visited once as a kid, but it was for a wedding reception, so I didn't get to explore at the time.

Plans after residency: Travel and take a long vacation! Then probably open a clinic or join a practice.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do: Teach! I love teaching others, so I would either go to grad school so I could teach at a college level or jump right in as a teacher at a private school or similar.

Name: Allyssa Jonsson, DO

Hometown: Baudette, MN

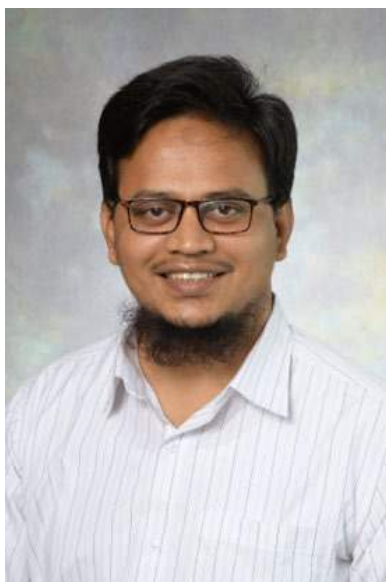

Medical School: Pacific Northwestern University of Health Sciences College of Osteopathic Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: I chose HCMC because of the high volume of obstetrical experience due to the residency program having its own OB service. I also am excited to be back in Minnesota after being gone for four years for Medical School.

Number One on my Twin Cities Bucket List: Going to the Renaissance Festival. I went once before and had a blast and would love to go again and wear costumes and everything.

Plans after Residency: I see myself going to work in Northern Minnesota, most likely Roseau MN, they still deliver babies there and I want to incorporate that into my family practice.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would be a Highschool art teacher. I love to paint and draw, and work with clay, along with exploring other ways to express creativity. My favorite teacher in my high school was my Art teacher. I would go there during study hall to work on projects. It would be a fun life to spend my time creating beautiful things.

Name: Sohail Mohammad, MBBS

Hometown: Hyderabad, India

Medical School: Kakatiya Medical College

Why I chose HCMC: I felt blessed after getting matched at HCMC as I believe this program has everything you need as a family medicine resident, and I believe I will become a confident and competent physician during the course of my residency training.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: Ride the Mall of America roller coaster.

Plans after residency: I would like to practice full spectrum family medicine in a rural setting.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would be probably an entrepreneur.

Name: Naomi Ojumah, MD

Hometown: Nigeria, Africa

Medical School: St. George's University School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: Involvement in the community.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: Still creating this list but I do want to go skiing for the first time

Plans after residency: Adolescent medicine

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would find a way to be a physician. ha-ha!

Name: Oluwatobi "Tobi" Oyeneye, MBBS

Hometown: Ogun, Nigeria

Medical School: University of Lagos College of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: It was one of my best interview experiences. Having interviewed from Nigeria, where it's mostly hot and humid year-round, the knowledge of the winter in Minnesota was cringeworthy for me. This knowledge was interestingly inadequate to surmount the fulfilment of belonging to an ethnically diverse community and caring for its underserved population. My interview at HCMC convinced me that the structure there would avail me of the requisite resources to be a more significant part of whatever community I find myself in, both my personal and professional lives.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: hmmm... a couple of things, but since I am limited to one, it will be watching Lebron James at the Target Center.

Plans after residency: Clinical Informatics is a field I wasn't exposed to back home. As I go through my training, I aim to explore it and perhaps pursue a fellowship.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? Sports Analyst

Name: Dhip Roy, MD

Hometown: Toronto, Canada

Medical School: Ross University
School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: I was seeking a place to call home as a Canadian where I would be amongst a diverse healthcare family who care about my well-being. Hennepin is a place of a community where people care about us.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: Paddle the Mississippi river in a kayak and visit the Retro drive in movie theatre - Vali-Hi drive in.

Plans after residency: I plan to travel to India and stay a couple of months, provide medical services and education on preventative medicine where it is unaffordable. As well, exploring the various pilgrimage areas and the beautiful architecture.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? A baker. It is my passion and hobby.

Name: Ankit Singh, MD

Hometown: Ocala, Florida

Medical School: Ross University
School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: I chose HCMC for the quality of training provided that will prepare me to be well-rounded competent physician after residency. During my interview, the whole staff was very genuine and felt like a family atmosphere. Furthermore, I chose HCMC because I have immediate family close by for support.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: I'm looking forward to all the new experiences in a different city and weather. I'm also looking forward to going to Timberwolves games.

Plans after residency: Currently, I'm leaning towards a fellowship in Sports Medicine, but these plans might change based on my experiences during residency.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would probably be working in the field of computer science.

Name: Ijeoma Toulassi, MD

Hometown: Anambra state,
Nigeria

Medical School: Emilio
Aguinaldo College School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: I chose HCMC because the people here are nice, very helpful and the hospital produces excellent training. Lastly because I consider Minnesota to be a beautiful state.

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: I want to go water rafting at St. Louis River.

Plans after residency: I don't have concrete plans yet but I'll most likely do a fellowship in hospital medicine.

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would be a traveler or a businesswoman.

Name: Stuart Yee, MD

Hometown: Palo Alto, CA

Medical School: Ross University
School of Medicine

Why I chose HCMC: The educational opportunities to work with a diverse underserved patient population, the amazing staff, and it's in Minneapolis so I'll never run out of places to explore!!

Number one on my Twin Cities bucket list: Explore all the hiking trails.

Plans after residency: Possibly pursuing a fellowship in global health or psychiatry! Also, I would like to hike the seven summits, play gigs across the country, and become a chess grandmaster!

If I weren't a physician, what would I do? I would be a professional musician!
